NSC BRIEFING

September 1955

ARGENTINE DEVELOPMENTS

- 1. Peron's 31 August speech, in which he withdrew his earlier offer to resign, and called on his followers to prepare to fight violence with "even greater violence," may have led army leaders to reconsider their support of him.
 - A. The top military leadership, which holds the dominant power position in the government, has been supporting Peron on the condition that he follow moderate policies.
 - B. Reportedly this support of Peron by the army leaders has been strongly disliked in the lower military echelons, particularly in the provinces. Even some high ranking officers advocated Peron's resignation on 30 August, Wsuccessful only if there was close cooperation and coordination among the provincial commands and the rebel forces in the Navy and Air Force.

A. Civil war could ensue However, if the army top command tried to force Peron out and he called on the Argentine

General Confederation of Labor to support him,

- B. The US Embassy in Buenos Aires reported that the 31 August labor rally and general strike was a successful demonstration of Peron's continued labor support and his ability to marshall the masses.
- C. To date, no revolutionary outbreaks have been reported.
